

ABSTRACT

When a wired connection detecting section 27 receives a connection establishment request from a wired network, a band conversion section 28 calculates a bandwidth required for wireless communications on the basis of bandwidth information obtained from communications in the wired network. Then, on the basis of the bandwidth calculated, the wireless resource management section 30 secures a communications resource in a wireless network.